Everybody deserves a coach

In this episode, host Trace Blackmore interviews Darius Barkauskas on a range of topics, including leadership, team building, and career development. Darius also shares his belief that "Everybody deserves a coach, and not necessarily your boss. You need some sort of an outlet to vent or get guidance. Someone who will not judge you and allow you to be vulnerable to give you that space to work through that stuff you've got going on."

Darius provides his perspective on what it takes to build a successful team, emphasizing the importance of balance and open communication. He shares his philosophy on constructive feedback and encourages listeners to embrace the stress that often comes with growth and development.

Ask the right questions

One of the key takeaways from the interview is Darius's advice on asking clarifying questions. "The skill is asking MORE questions. So you have to get it out of the other person by asking calibrated questions. Just keep that person talking, and you'll get further and further along to what the REAL issue is."

Trace Blackmore, host of Scaling Up H2O, says, "Darius brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the podcast. His insights on leadership and career development are sure to inspire and challenge our listeners."
