ON THE SCALING UP! H2O PODCAST

Scaling UP! H2O Podcast Releases Episode 396 Featuring Steve Russell

The Scaling UP! H2O Podcast is thrilled to announce the release of “Navigating Carbon Capture: Water Demands and Wastewater Solutions,” with Steve Russell, Senior Process Engineer from Kiewit. This insightful episode will be available on Friday, November 29, 2024, across all major podcast platforms and at www.ScalingUpH2o.com.

In this episode, host Trace Blackmore dives into the intricacies of carbon capture and its impact on water treatment with Steve Russell. The conversation unpacks the challenges of managing wastewater in carbon capture facilities and the innovative approaches required to meet both environmental and operational standards.

Listeners will gain valuable insights on:

- Understanding the unique wastewater composition generated in carbon capture.
- Strategies for effective collaboration between water treatment and engineering teams.
- Adapting to resource limitations in complex water treatment projects.

Steve highlights the importance of a tailored approach in water treatment, noting, “Carbon capture isn’t just about removing CO₂—it’s about managing the water and wastewater byproducts effectively.” His expertise sheds light on the essential role of water treatment in the growing field of carbon capture.
